Seminar Series

COLLABORATION IN MENTAL HEALTH RESEARCH:

Challenges, constraints and contributions to knowledge.

At the invitation of the Survivors History Network the Centre of Excellence in Interdisciplinary Mental Health (CEIMH) is hosting five Survivors Research Network seminars from March-July 2010.

The theme of these seminars is what is being learnt through the collaborative work being undertaken by survivor and academic researchers

The next seminar in this series is on June 16th 2010 from 4.00pm-6.00pm at CEIMH, Basement Watson Building, University of Birmingham, Edgbaston, Birmingham B15 2TT

www.ceimh.bham.ac.uk

Drinks and light refreshments will be provided

‘From Projects to Partnership:

Building collaborative research in Scotland’

Jim McGill, Tracy Laird & Rob McKay

This seminar will profile two interesting examples of partnership research: ‘Our Mad History’, a Community History Project celebrating the history of the mental health service user movement in Lothian; and a study by service users based at the Mental Health Foundation in Scotland on the new Mental Health (Care and Treatment) (Scotland) Act, undertaken in partnership with academics. The journey towards establishing a mental health service user research network in Scotland and some of the challenges and constraints of this will be explored.
