This good-practice resource establishes a principled value base for service-user involvement. It establishes Together's standing as an organisation committed to the wellbeing of everyone who uses services, and lays out a vision for the empowerment of local and national groups. The book covers:

- Putting practice into context
- Together, wellbeing and a social approach to distress
- Surviving in a maddening world
- Service-user involvement setting the scene
- Service-users working together
- Making it happen.

With encomiums by Catherine Jackson, Editor of Mental Health Today and Gary Platz, Service Leader (Wellink Trust, Wellington NZ) – plus helpful resources and references – the guide is a useful aid for anyone who is serious about service-user involvement.
